We invest in accountable programs

- The Community Investment Team, a team of local volunteers, meets each year to review agency programs and distribute locally raised funds

- UWBB funds must be used for direct human services, not administration

We leverage the collective power of the community

- UWBB assists local agencies leverage matching dollars for our community from local, state, federal and private funding sources
- UWBB seeks to create unique collaborations among government entities, education entities, private businesses, non-profits, foundations, and individual donors

READ UNITED, an initiative of UWBB's Women UNITED, was developed to encourage a love of reading in students and provide a resource to get them started on this journey.

The Volunteer Income Assistance Program (VITA) is an example of UWBB's involvement, along with community partners, to serve residents of the Big Bend through proactive and collaborative solutions to improve their long-term financial stability and quality of life.

ReadingPals, an initiative of UWBB's Women UNITED, is improving the reading ability of children. ReadingPals relies on hundreds of volunteers every year to read one-on-one with children who have been identified as struggling readers.
